

Do You Have Questions About Writing?

Key Specialists on campus can help with a range of writing or questions related to writing.

Counseling services – Offers some group seminars and sessions related to writing and academics (e.g. Thesis Completion group for graduate students, Study Skills seminars). <http://coun.uvic.ca/>

The Writing Centre – Offers drop in or booked appointments, for one-on-one support with trained graduate tutors from a range of disciplines, also group seminars in special topics (e.g. Introduction to Academic Writing), and online tutoring. <http://lrc.uvic.ca/servicesprograms/twc.php>

Library and Research Help – Visit the Info Desk for search help, start online chats with librarians, search special seminars in research issues, inquire about special collections and subject librarians. <http://library.uvic.ca/research/>

Resource Centre for Students with a Disability – Offers services and programming for registered students, including writing tutors, academic learning strategists, and information about assistive technology for writing. <http://rcsd.uvic.ca/>

Peer Editors – Sometimes organized through course websites. Also look into collaboration with friends and classmates. See if your professor or T.A. can help to connect you with other interested students.

Private Tutors – Available at a fee through U-Vic Career Services website and other community services. <https://learninginmotion.uvic.ca/myAccount/career/opportunities/tutor.htm>

After entering the link above, you will need to click on the following: >Student/Alumni (fill in netlink ID) >Career (at the top of the page) >Tutor Registry >Search Available Tutors